MARCH 2016 to FEBRUARY 2017

Tools are essential in making repairs around the house, setting up camp or working on something to make a task easier. You couldn't do the job without them. But they must be in good condition. If your hammer head is loose, the hammer becomes a dangerous weapon. If your saw blade is dull, it makes the work harder and you run the risk of cutting yourself if the blade jumps out of the groove and if your screwdriver's blade is all beat up, you're going to ruin a lot of screws.

Your character is like a set of tools. Think of your character as a set of attributes we talk about in the Scout Law - trustworthy, loyal, helpful and so on. If you're not trustworthy, that part of your character is like a hammer with a loose head. You could be dangerous to others because no one could depend on you. If you're not loyal, you're like a dull saw blade - not reliable when the chips are down.

A good craftsman keeps his tools in excellent shape because they are his livelihood. A good Scout keeps his character in excellent shape because he knows that the attributes that make up his character are his most precious possession.

Let's remind ourselves of that by joining in the Scout Law.
